Goal of the Elks campaign is to secure 2,000,000 signatures on petitions to be presented to the State Legislature urging mandatory, stringent penalties be meted out to persons convicted of selling narcotics.

More than 1,000,000 persons have now signed the petitions and the campaign has been extended state-wide, with other fraternal, civic and church groups cooperating.

Di Miceli Hits King Mailings

In reporting to local Republican party workers on today's speaking appearance before the California Federation of Republican Women's Southern Division at the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel, Leonard Di Miceli, the endorsed Republican candidate for Congress in the 17th Congressional District charged Congressman King with taking unfair political advantage of Congressional free mailing privileges.

He pointed out that "as usual King, waiting until just before election, mailed out campaign literature, purporting to be a Congressman's report, to the voters of the 17th Congressional District."

Di Miceli stated that it costs more than $20,000 for one mailing to the registered voters of the 17th Congressional District; that no candidate can compete when the U.S. Treasury is used for political purposes.

In spite of automatic gear shifts on cars, motorists still have the job of shifting mental gears themselves, says the Indiana Traffic Safety Foundation. Just as cars are equipped with different gears for different kinds of driving, ever-changing traffic situations require constant alertness to adjust your driving techniques.

Planners Set Hearing on Garrett Corp. Rezoning

First of two public hearings on rezoning 88 acres of land for heavy manufacturing for potential use by AiResearch, will be held before the Planning Commission Nov. 5.

Request to change the zoning from agricultural to M-2 on the land on the north side of 190th St., east of Crenshaw Blvd. was made Wednesday by the Garrett Corp. parent company for AiResearch.

Disclosure that the aircraft parts and component manufacturing concern is negotiating for a Torrance site, was made here earlier this week, although company officials withheld the exact location until they made their formal request for rezoning Wednesday night.

The plant is now located in Westchester and the firm's officials want to move because they believe their present plant will be surrounded by International Airport in a few years.

In another planning action, several residents protested the proposed rezoning of the old Walteria School site for commercial purposes. The school site at 242nd and Ward St., has not been used since a new school was built eight years ago.

Congressman Cecil R. King (D) and challenger Leonard DiMiceli (R) will answer questions on issues facing the next session of Congress as far as business and economy are concerned.

The public is invited, Mill said, and can reserve space by calling the Chamber office, FA 8-2814.
